

Restorative Practices That Actually Transform Culture

Integrate restorative practices schoolwide - not just as an intervention, but as the foundation for a culture of connection, accountability, and healing.

The Problem Schools Face

Traditional discipline models rely on exclusion, punishment, and reactivity. The result?

- Students repeat the same behaviors because no one addresses the root cause
- Staff are inconsistent in how they define problem behavior
- Relationships break down between students, staff, and families
- Trauma goes unaddressed
- Behavior becomes personal instead of teachable

Most schools want a restorative culture, but what they have are one-off circles, unclear systems, and limited staff confidence.

The ElevateEd Approach to Restorative Practices

We help schools integrate restorative practices into the daily rhythm of teaching, learning, and leading across Tier 1, Tier 2, and Tier 3.

Our support includes:

Restorative Systems Planning

We help you align restorative practices with your MTSS, PBIS, and behavior systems.

Administrator & Team Coaching

Leaders will know how to model, coach, and reinforce restorative values across the building.

Tier 1 Culture Building

We offer a proactive approach and train your entire staff on how to build relationships and proactively foster community, before conflict ever happens.

Student & Family Engagement

We help your school create restorative alignment with students and families, so the culture isn't staff-only.

Tier 2/3 Skill Building

We offer a responsive yet proactive approach. We teach staff how to facilitate conversations and circles after harm has occurred with real scripts, strategies, and support.

What You Can Expect

With ElevateEd, schools implementing restorative practices see:

- Stronger relationships between students and staff
- Fewer suspensions and exclusions
- Increased student ownership of behavior
- More consistent Tier 1 practices
- A noticeable shift in school climate
- Consistent beliefs and mindsets about school culture and student behavior

“Restorative Practices with ElevateEd gave us more than training; it gave us a language, a system, and a way to repair harm that actually works.”

- Principal, Middle School Partner

Common Questions

Q: Can we still use consequences?

Yes - restorative practices are not “no discipline.” They add clarity, focusing on clear identification of major and minor behaviors, dignity, and ownership to behavior response.

Q: What if our staff isn't bought in yet?

That's normal. We meet your team where they're at with training that builds confidence, not guilt, while ensuring that we're all operating with the same beliefs and mindsets.
